THE DAILY AVALANCHE.

General Gordon Granger will probably reach this city to-day.

N. G. Taylor, of Tennessee, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, arrived in Omaha on the 11th.

Among the passengers on the California steamer on Tuesday was ex-Senator Gwin.

General Howard returned to Washington on the 11th and resumed his duties at the head of the Freedmen's Bureau.

Brevet Major General E. A. Carr has been ordered to report for duty as Commanding General Department of Washington.

The National Intelligencer indignantly denies that Senator Fessenden has written a letter avowing that he now favors impeachment.

It was semi-officially announced in Washington on the 12th that no present changes are contemplated in the Cabinet.

Ex-Governor Charles S. Morehead is on a visit to his friends in the blue grass regions of Kentucky.

The Democratic State Convention of Wisconsin, met day before yesterday, Governor and nominated J. J. Archa[illegible]ubee, and G. L. Parks for L. G., opp[illegible] comprising two hundred and [illegible] only a plu[illegible]

General Custar's offense, [illegible] is to be court-martialed, is his leaving Fort Wallace for Fort Harker, where his wife was staying, and where the cholera prevailed.

Ex-President Millard Fillmore arrived in Chicago on the 11th instant. He left his baggage and character in the rear, considering neither safe in that "thief ridden, scandal mongering burg."

An order from General Grant desiring General Hancock's presence in Washington before proceeding to New Orleans, was received in Leavenworth on the 11th. General Hancock started East on the following day.

Marshal Goodloe, who was prevented by General Sickles from executing process in the United States Circuit Court, is a Radical Republican. Certain newspapers here erroneously called him a Copperhead.

Advices from New Orleans state that Governor Flanders, of Louisiana, talks of resigning. It is stated that the difficulties arising from Sheridan's removal have caused Flanders' contemplated resignation.

The total length of the East river bridge will be five thousand eight hundred and sixty-two feet, and the estimated cost is six millions six hundred and seventy-five thousand five hundred and thirty-seven dollars.

The Board of Health of Cincinnati has ordered the registration of all the prostitutes in that city, with a view of governing the social evil by the adoption of the French system of licensing houses of ill fame, which was put in operation in Nashville, under General Rosecrans.

Another effort is about to be made in North Carolina to enforce the process of the United States Court relative to the debt which General Sickles regarded as in violation of order No. 10. It is understood that General Canby will repeal the order in question.

The Dubuque (Iowa) Herald, in speaking of the election in Montana, says: "And in Montana James M. Cavanaugh is said to have been handsomely elected to Congress. Old Ben Butler will probably move his expulsion. Cavanaugh slapped the brute's face at the Charleston Convention, and told him that he was a dirty dog."

The Washington Intelligencer, of Wednesday morning, has an editorial on what it calls the great reaction and Democratic victory in Maine, in which it strongly hints that the uprising of the people is of such a character that it is the President's duty to vacate most of the Federal offices in that State, and fill them with Democrats and Conservatives.

Further and more careful effort has been made to ascertain the number of rebels now, according to the Presidential interpretation, remaining unpardoned. It is found that there are the President, Vice President, eight Cabinet Ministers, about twenty State Governors, five Generals, ten Lieutenant Generals, about thirty Major Generals, two or three hundred Brevet Major Generals, two Admirals, and perhaps two hundred Confederate agents abroad.

A law in New York compels all cars in the city of Brooklyn to be horse cars; but on the Coney Island railroad the law is evaded by having a horse fastened ahead of a veritable locomotive of sixty horse power, drawing a long train of cars. All the frisky creature has to do is to keep ahead of the train. When the train reaches the city limits the horse is detached, and the engine increases its speed.

A Democratic mass meeting was held in Baltimore a few night's ago to ratify the new constitution of Maryland. From 15,000 to 20,000 persons were in attendance. Speeches were made by Governor Swann and others. Resolutions were adopted expressive of devotion to a Republican form of government, denouncing the constitution of 1864, and congratulating California and Kentucky on the recent Democratic victories within their borders.

The President's recent constitutional proclamation is being printed by the thousand to send out to all officials of the Government. Secretary McCulloch will accompany it with a brief letter, calling attention to its terms and enjoining upon his subordinates due obedience to law and authority. Secretary Welles will summarise his ideas, and will merely add that he is confident that it will hereafter be, as it has heretofore been, the pride of the naval service to uphold the power and glory of the Union. Secretary Browning is preparing his circular, which will also be brief, and without any special significance. General Grant, Secretary ad interim, will merely print the proclamation and the President's order thereupon in' circular form, and send a number, of course, to each military post and headquarters.

The National Intelligencer tells a remarkable story of the way in which Massachusetts displayed the excessive zeal for the war about which so much is attempted to be made, for political profit, now the war is over. Besides the buying up of random negroes in Virginia and the two Carolinas, to be credited as Massachusetts recruits, a battalion in California was engaged to credit themselves on the quota of Massachusetts by a promise of large bounties and the payment of mileage from California and back. As the case is stated, we understand that these double mileages were deducted from the bounties authorized, and the State is welcome, by a stairs for reimbursement in full from the United States. It was sharp practice to raise Massachusetts recruits on the other side of the continent, and make the United States Treasury pay the cost of bringing them over. The Intelligencer improves the opportunity to give the rabid politicians of Massachusetts a talk for setting up as exemplars of superfine loyalty for themselves, and sneering at Kentucky as a disloyal State, notwithstanding she sent a hundred thousand soldiers into the field without bounties or cost to the Government.

Quarantine at Port Mahon Against United States Vessels.

LIVERPOOL, September 12—11 a.m.—Cotton active; estimated sales 12,000 bales; uplands 9⅝d; Orleans 9¾d. Sales of the week 60,000 bales, of which 5000 were to speculators and 17,000 for export; stock 818,000 bales.

BALTIMORE, September 12.—The Border States Convention met yesterday. Representatives are present from Maryland, Delaware, Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee. Horace Maynard has been chosen President. Speeches have been made by Maynard, Cresswell and others, and letters have been read from distinguished whites and negro politicians, among them one from Sumner, in which, after stating his anxiety to be present, he says:

Congress will leave undone what is ought to do if it fails to provide promptly for the establishment of equal rights, whether political or civil, everywhere throughout the Union. This is a solemn duty which cannot be shirked or postponed. The idea is intolerable that we may, under any pretension of State rights, set up a political oligarchy within its border, and then call it a Republican Government. I believe, with all my soul, that such a Government must be rejected as inconsistent with the requirements of the declaration of independence. Respectfully, yours,

[Signed] CHARLES SUMNER.

Resolutions were adopted to the effect that it is the duty of Congress to protect the the equal voting and rights of all loyal American citizens, without regard to complexion, and to guarantee a republican form of government to all States; also urging Congress to aid thoroughly the adoption of measures requisite for the establishment of peace and prosperity throughout the land, and suggesting negotiation to the State for the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment, providing no State shall disfranchise any citizen because of race or color; they also approve the Reconstruction measures of Congress; call for the reinstatement of Sheridan; applaud the military service, prudence and firmness of General Grant, and express the belief that the President should be impeached and removed. A mass meeting subsequently heid indorsed the action of the Convention.

LONDON, September 12.—A dispatch from Athens says that Great Britain and France, in a joint note to Greece, instructed the Government at Athens to refrain from hostilities against the Sublime Porte, and maintain a strict neutrality on the Cretan question.

PARIS, September 12.—The Italian Congress is still in session. During its sitting this morning a short attack was made upon the Socialists of the United States, which give rise to an excited discussion. TRIP TO NEW YORK.

Railroad Travel—Memphis and Ohio—Passenger Agent Hill—Taking Advice—Louisville and Cincinnati—On Time Through—River Low—Atlantic and Great Western—The Route to Travel—Finis.

NEW YORK CITY, September 9, 1867.

After an exceedingly agreeable and rapid trip I was safely landed here last evening. Being well acquainted with Mr. Asa Hill, the courteous passenger agent of the Memphis and Ohio railroad, and knowing his familiarity with the whole routing of railroad business and its connections, I applied to him for advice as to the best, surest, safest and speediest route from Memphis to this, the Empire City. He informed me that he could "put me through" on just that kind of line, for he, Mr. Conkling in his integrity and regard, I "accepted his apology" and here I am—satisfied in every particular, without a mishap or blunder, that it would have been impossible to do better, if indeed, it were possible to do as well.

It is an old saying that one should never abuse the bridge that crosses him in safety, which means that we should be thankful, in these times of frequent disasters, that we are not robbed, or have our necks broken, which amounts to pretty much the same thing; and I feel like saying a word or two in very thankfulness to Colonel Hill, for the perfect, impartial strict impartiality with which he counseled me. When one travels one likes to let those at home know what he sees, and, if he be not a busy observer, he at least knows how he fares. This is just exactly my [illegible] observers proceed to give my friends at home some idea of what I consider the best route to New York.

Taking the advice of Mr. Asa Hill, I took, at the same time, the four o'clock p.m. train on the Memphis and Louisville railroad, as the shortest, most agreeable and speediest route or part of route, to New York. Arrived at Louisville, at one o'clock p.m. the following day, I had the option of continuing on by train, or taking the mail packet at two p.m., both leaving at the same time. Preferring variety, I soon found myself on board the mail steamer General Buell, Captain Frank Carter, one of the most polished and courteous of commanders, and evidently posted thoroughly in his duties. Need I speak of the sumptuous accommodations of the Buell, and the politeness and attention of Captain Carter? "That will come like a spoiled child's feelings," as I wrote once, in an attempt at a song for the Limonite Baton.

Arrived at Cincinnati at five o'clock, all well in store, I did not care to linger there, though thankful for a meal's decent restaurant, and we were furnished with a most luxurious breakfast. Lest it should be misunderstood that my friend Hill had advised beyond the termini of the road (the M. and L. Line) whose interests he so zealously guards, I will state that he presented the advantages of choice in taking this route, and of choice I availed myself of the right of election. From Memphis to Louisville was up to time, and there was no "waiting connections" by boat, for the Buell moved as though she could jump the bars, for the Ohio is falling every hour and the bars rising.

Having traveled in my life over a great many railroads, and come to New York over other roads, I determined to try

THE ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN.

Nor did I have cause to regret my choice. I must say that, of all the rides I ever had, considering the road on the Atlantic and Great Western was in every particular the most delightful. I left the depot of the Atlantic and Great Western railroad at Cincinnati, at six a.m., taking my seat in one of the finest of coaches, spacious and commodious day coaches, and, will you believe it, I never changed my place until I took, with the other passengers, the ferry boat across the Hudson, from Jersey City, and landed in New York. Thus one night and one day and a half in the splendid coach, waking and sleeping, I was carried all the way, in repose and comfort, from Cincinnati to New York, without chance, indeed, to get outside rails in one car, and that, too, with the best accommodation, for waking or sleeping. Indeed, all the way, it was more like being in a grand hotel than anything else, only we did not have our meals on the cars. These we obtained, and of the very best kind, at the stations of Meadville, Pennsylvania, and at Horseyville, New York, on our way. On the remainder of travelling we had the accommodation we wanted, only that it was a pleasant variety that we did stop at the stations and get them. These coaches of the Atlantic and Great Western are large, and more spacious and altogether better furnished, in every particular, than those of any other road that I have passed. The broad gauge enables one indeed travelling better. The increased feeling no dis-ease or discomfort at all, from the easy going of the cars, at the widening of road, being, and seeing, as just to be desired—almost, indeed, as if he was not going along the road, and making ninety-five or thirty miles an hour, over hard ground space. Indeed, he might say, with great propriety, with Sir John, while traveling in such coaches, to any friend upon his morning "shall I [illegible] to make haste?"

THE ROUTE TO TRAVEL.

Now I would respectfully advise all my friends, and especially those of Memphis, if they wish to travel with speed, ease and comfort, and the very best accommodation in every particular, to purchase their tickets at No. 327½ Main street, where either Mr. Greenley or Mr. Hill may always be found, take the bus and get on the train at the depot of the Ohio and Louisville railroad, where they will find Superintendent S. B. Jones, who so ably conducts the affairs of the road, and seconds the efforts of President Woodruff to accommodate, not bounce the public. Some Memphis beer will be speedily and kindly proffered, and, if you are a stranger, thoughtful attention to your baggage, which will not fail to make connection at Cincinnati. There take the Atlantic and Great Western railway train, after a delicious breakfast, and then will be comfortably whizzed over thousands of miles of railroad, to New York, without the least particle of danger, fear or alarm; but in the midst of continued and continuous comfort and pleasure. This is a fact, I have tried it, and I mean to repeat it. When I go back to Memphis (God bless it, I think [illegible] a [illegible] and travel the same road.

Two express passenger trains leave Cincinnati daily, on the Atlantic and Great Western railroad, to accommodate the traveling public, and this fact now makes the accommodation of that road, between Cincinnati and New York, superior to that of any other road. At least I think so from the experience which I have had.

I have seen many sights that I should like to describe, but in this hurried communication, prefer confining myself to the useful, rather than indulging in the graceful. Au revoir.

SATURDAY, : : : : SEPTEMBER 14, 1867

ALTHOUGH we dally not with the Muses and let APOLLO play his "lyre divine" uninterruptedly, it serves us as pastime to glance occasionally over the ephemeral pages of such papilottes as BONNER'S Ledger. We gave its "valued correspondent," WARD BEECHER, a pleasant piece of our mind, the other day, and more especially his hashed up old sermons, and interpolated maudlin sentimentality, and now we propose to pay a little courtesy to the drab-coated philosopher, HORACE GREELEY, who is keeping better and more deserving, and more needy, writers out of its columns, by his "reminonsenses." We shall not follow the Simon Pure of Radicalism any farther, although we may occasionally take a glance at his "recollections" of certain political affiliations and disruptions, marking epochs in our country's

"Strange, eventful history."

HORACE has been a most remarkable character, from earliest infancy, either sickness (feebleness) or eccentricity being always paramount. For instance, in his fifth chapter, he thus refers to his babyhood, of which he must have a most felicitous and faithful remembrance:

I was for years a feeble, sickly child, often under medical treatment, and unable to watch, through a closed window, the falling of rain, without incurring an instant and violent attack of illness.

Was there ever any thing more deeply, tearfully pathetic? Won't soubrettes, grisettes, romantic young ladies, and dear, delightful old maidens, drop the unhesitating tear, if they do not weep briny floods, over the infant ailings of the poor, suffering "darlint?" Think of the weakling viewing the pattering rain, as it beat upon the panes, and shuddering at its warlike music, like the fluttering aspen, and sinking into syncope! As MACBETH, shaking in every fiber of his body, and his limbs refusing to perform their office, exclaimed, as he viewed his ensanguined hands,

"This is a sorry sight"

Was it not a "sorry sight" to see the "muling and puking" HORACE, "in his nurse's arms," shrinking in his idiosyncratic antipathy at beholding "through a closed window the falling of rain, and [not without] incurring an instant and violent attack of illness?" Perhaps the "fit" might have been mitigated, or avoided altogether, if the casement had been unclosed and the fact had been demonstrated to the infant "philosopher," that the raindrops were only the blunt and pointless arrows of the storm. But, we take it, that HORACE desired to draw a strong picture of his exceeding feebleness in earliest infancy, as a physiological cause of, or an apology for, his forcible feebleness in after life. Be this as it may, he must stand recorded with the other philosophers who had antipathies the most revolting, in which others delighted, and resembled the ABBE SICARD, who "died of a rose in aromatic pain." In the course of his flaccid and interesting-less twaddle, HORACE alludes to an episode in his life thuswise, and we are sure the reader will congratulate himself that the prolix writer traveled over so many years in so short a space, when he might have formed many chapters out of the interesting incidents of long clothes and diapers. His uncle gave him a "Columbian Orator," of which he speaks in contemptuous terms, from his present standpoint, although it was popular in our schoolboy days. The fact is, it did not have much to say of the "irrepressible conflict," nor did it confine its extracts to such polemics as inculcated the Federal idea that the General Government possessed all power, that the Constitution was a mere chimera, and States bore the same relation to the Federal Government as counties bear to States. So much cannot be said of later labors in the same vineyard, by more modern Yankee bibliographers, whose poisonous compilations have been since scattered broadcast through our schools. Well, in referring to this "Orator," the autobiographer says:

Those who happen to have been familiar, in its day, with that volume, will recollect it as a medley of dialogues, extracts from orations, from sermons, from speeches in Parliament, in Congress, and at the bar, with two or three versified themes for declamation, such as "Columbia, Columbia, to glory arise," and the lines (since attributed to Edward Everett, but who must have written them very young, if he wrote them at all,) beginning, "You'd scarce expect one of my age to speak in public on the stage"—lines which I was dragged forward to recite incessantly till I fairly loathed them.

We have quoted this long sentence, which is valueless, for the simple purpose of showing that GREELEY is not universal in his knowledge; is not a walking cyclopedia, and should have known more, or had a better recollection of those wonderful lines, so genial to early boydom. He previously scouts at "LINDLEY MURRAY" having been placed in the hands of a child, but cannot perceive that the simple rhythmical address was prepared for just such "feeble" children as himself. Some ignoramus, we believe, did attribute the doggerel in question to EDWARD EVERETT, but it was written by another EVERETT, who was probably a Yankee pedagogue, and it is possible was happy in the distinctive appellation of DAVID. Another "dip" into this most uninteresting chapter, (for HORACE is silent as to his mishaps, spankings and squallings,) and we let the philosopher "gang his ain gait." He informs the readers of BONNER'S Ledger, that it was proposed by the better-off neighbors to raise a pony purse, and send the "infant progeny" to college, or rather, an "academy," so that it should not cost his parents a copper. He says of his "cruel parients:"

They listened thoughtfully to the proposal, briefly deliberated, then firmly though gracefully declined it; saying that they would give their children the best education they could afford, and there stop. I do not remember that I had then any decided opinion or wish in the premises; but I now have; and, from the bottom of my heart, I thank my parents for their decision. Much as I have needed a fuller, better education, I rejoice that I am indebted for schooling to none but those of whom I had a right to ask and expect it.

There is something equivocal in this, and it involves three questions. Is he proud that he derived his education through the exertions or self denial of his parents; or, which is less amiable, with the slight advantages they were enabled to afford, he had won his way to high position (unenviable though it be;) or that he regards the sizor,or those educated at public expense, or through private charity, as resting under obligations to be remembered the rest of their lives, with keen and implacable anguish? In the latter light, it must be taken as a reflection upon the common school system, with which he must be familiar, and through which, parents are in some instances taxed for the support of such schools, although they cannot avail themselves of the advantages for their own children! Unless GREELEY'S future chapters greatly exceed in interest the empty and vapid chapters that have gone before, BONNER, who sometimes drives a sharp bargain, in this instance, as in the case of his engagement with BEECHER, "pays dear for his whistle."

MERCHANTS are primarily interested in the promotion of immigration. Every farmer brought into the South becomes a consumer of imported goods, and cheapens the necessaries of life. We are told that in the past four months ten millions of dollars have been transmitted from Mississippi through this city to Northwestern States, in payment for plantation supplies. Tennessee and Alabama, a prominent banker states, have forwarded at least seven millions for the same purpose. Merchants and bankers have exhausted their cash and credit in making advances for these purposes. In these facts we find a solution of the monetary difficulties which reduce business men to the utmost straits. Hence, too, the multiplicity of protests that float out each day from the offices of the notaries public. There are men under protest worth hundreds of thousands in real estate. One of our oldest and staunchest merchants has said that, through the past month, he has been unable to pay clerks and rentals. Trade has been absolutely suspended throughout the city, and the poor nave found it difficult to secure bread. A change slowly supervenes. The cotton crop will soon draw large sums of money into the city. The seventeen millions swept away during the summer will flow backwards in winter. There will then be no refluent tide of gold and greenbacks. Farmers of the interior have only to adjust balances with merchants, and a better and more permanent prosperity will reign than was ever known before. Corn is now selling in Eastern Mississippi at fifty cents per bushel. The bacon crop of West Tennessee is excellent, while wheat, rye, potatoes and oats abound. Whatever basis for complaints may exist in our political condition, brighter prospects, affecting our future practical well-being, never dawned upon the South. Within two months money will be as abundant in this city as it was last winter; and since our people have been taught an invaluable lesson by agricultural blunders of the past, misfortunes of which we now complain may never recur. In connection with this subject, and to perpetuate the reign of Plenty, that proposed movement of merchants which contemplates the attraction of Northern and European farmers to the fair fields of the South deserves the hearty concurrence and approbation of the people. Quite half of the richest fields of Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas are uncultivated. Prices at which these lands are offered, are less by half than that of wild lands along the Illinois Central railroad. By all means, let us have a convocation of our business men.

Mrs. Trimble, wife of the Radical Congressman from the Nashville district, and daughter of R. H. McEwen, Sr., died in Nashville on the 11th.

Kentucky was considered in a hapless condition, needing the doctoring of Congress relative to her form of government; what will be thought of California? Perhaps Connecticut may need a bolus or two, and Montana be voted a cataplasm.

We had the pleasure, yesterday, of again grasping the manly hand of our treasured friend Colonel JOS. A. HENRY, jr., who has just returned from his plantations in North Alabama and Tennessee, and is now on his way to Arkansas. He reports the crops as redundant, and inspiring the liveliest hopes of plenty and independence to the thrifty planter and farmer.

The Greatest Cough Remedy Ever Discovered.

DR. C. WILLIAMS'
Compound Pulmonic Balsam of Wild Cherry and Wood Naptha,
FOR THE COMPLETE CURE OF Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Asthma, Bronchitis, Spitting of Blood, Hard all other Lung Complaints, tending to Consumption.

READ! READ! READ!

THIS justly celebrated preparation is recommended by some of the most learned and intelligent physicians in the country, and will be found far superior to any remedy for the cure of all diseases of the respiratory organs. All persons who are used in for Asthma, Cough, Spitting of Blood, Hooping Cough, Croup or Hives, Consumption, Pain, Soreness of the Breast, Difficulty of Breathing, and every other disease of the Breast and Lungs, attest to its superior efficacy in the most unqualified terms.

BRONCHITIS, a disease which is annually sweeping thousands to a premature grave, under the mistaken name of Consumption, is promptly relieved and cured by it. The usual symptoms of this disease, (Bronchitis) are Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, Hoarseness, Soreness of the Throat or Lungs, Asthma, Hectic Fever, accompanied with a raising of phlegm or matter, and sometimes blood. It is an inflammation of the membrane which lines the inside of the whole of the wind passages and vesicles when run through every part of the body. This Pulmonic Balsam immediately suppresses the Cough and Pain, subdues the inflammation and fever, removes the difficulty of breathing, by producing a free and easy expectoration so that a cure is soon effected. It always cures in ASTHMA. Two or three doses will cure the CROUP or HIVES of children in a few minutes, and it is remarkable how promptly it will subduing the violence of HOOPING COUGH, and effecting a speedy cure, and many who have been given up by their physicians as incurable in Consumption, have been restored to perfect health by it.

Sold by all Druggists in Memphis and everywhere in the South and West. se8

A Card.

WE will at once rebuild our warehouses, and will have it of that month we will be ready to receive goods on store.

The whole will be divided into fire proof compartments by brick walls, and connected with the Memphis and Charleston railroad by the last of January next, and as many days earlier as we may be able to do so the approaching year, may rest assured we will be ready for them.

We design establishing a Cotton Compress in connection with our warehouses, upon an adjacent lot, which will be ready by the last of October or sooner. The proximity of our vessels to the levee renders the handling or reloading of cotton so convenient that we can transfer the cotton for shipment by river less of drayage. The advantages of the position is equal to one dollar per bale on cotton sent for compression and reshipment. Liberal advances on all cotton in our warehouses for compression; there can be no cotton in our warehouses for compression that will not have to pay drayage twice, since it would be no cheaper for us to transfer it from our floor to the Compress as to turn it out in the ordinary way for transfer by drays.

FRENCH MEDICINES PREPARED BY GRIMAULT & COMPANY

Chemists to His Imperial Highness Prince Napoleon.

THESE different medicines represent the most recent medical discoveries, founded on the principles of chemistry and therapeutics. They must not be confounded with secret or quack medicines, as their names sufficiently indicate their composition; a circumstance which has caused them to be appreciated and prescribed by the faculty in the whole world. They widely differ from those numerous medicines advertised in the public papers as able to cure every possible disease, as they are applicable only to but a very few complaints. The most stringent laws exist in France with regard to the sale of medical preparations, and no new one which have undergone an examination by the Academy of Medicine, and have been ordered officially, either in the hospitals or in the practice of the first medical men, are authorized by the government. This fact must be a guarantee for the confidence of buyers. GRIMAULT & CO.'S medicines.

A Humboldtian desires us to correct something that was published in relation to a fracas in his town. It seems there was not a general melee between Messrs. Hawkins and Miller as reported, but a series of distinct and independent fights. We readily give Humboldt the credit of the correction, especially since we know that the people of Humboldt are exceedingly quiet and law abiding, in fact models of those virtues.

A member of the Lamp and Gas Committee says that the old volunteer fire company paid two dollars per thousand cubic feet for gas, but now the bills are rendered for public buildings the jail and the fire department at six dollars and twenty cents. This so-fall," continues the statement of the Gas company, that there must be some mistake.

The Atlanta Base Ball Club has opened the season, and is ready to receive challenges. The officers are: E. Moffet, President; H. M. Mondel, Treasurer; Louis Dathf, Secretary; J. Seligman, First Captain; J. Stindler, Second Captain. Any person wishing to join will leave their name with the Secretary, at No. 138 Washington street.

Letters from Desoto, Panola, Tallahatchie, Marshall and other counties of Mississippi, by our leading cotton merchants indicate that the worm is doing very extensive damage, and that the crop will consequently fall considerably below expectation. The danger is increased by the cool weather, and the probability that an early frost will prevent the top crop from ripening. Well informed persons do not think now that the crop will come near the exaggerated estimates that have been put out by houses that should be better informed.

The clever railroad conductor H. R. Osgood, Esq., with his wife, occupies rooms over Reilly & Reedy's grocery store, on the corner of Exchange street and Main. While they were at breakfast yesterday morning, some rogues cut open their chamber door with a hatchet, and then cavorted [illegible] laid down a shed, and placing on this six men's shirts that they found, also a lot of jewelry and clothing, the whole amounting in value to $300; they tied the whole up in a bundle and threw it upon an adjoining shed. They then walked down the front stairs, went around back, got the bundle and made their escape.

There has been a very lively time in one of the Loyal Leagues over the question whether, Dr. Ramsey being dead and of no more use, politically, there should be resolutions passed expressive of regret for the political imbecile and regret for his unfortunate fate. Dr. Chandler did not think Ramsey was a very good man, and doubted the propriety of the resolutions. This brought out from a colored man inquiries relative to Colonel Chandler's relations on St. Martin street and elsewhere. Then the fight began. Those in favor of the resolutions, the opponents of Barbour Lewis wanted to know if his double was still in the council. Dr. Shaw, to soften the discussion, objected to the resolutions relative to Ramsey because Ramsey was a regular practitioner. Some wanted a publication in the Post, some thought it wouldn't do. Colonel Chandler excused himself, and then the whole affair simmered down.

There is every indication that at the ensuing election the Radicals will have a desperate fight among themselves for the spoils. The Hunter men say that Lynch was nothing by what his will be. Already they are split up into as many factions as individuals, each of which is trying to serve the country and the cause of truth by exposure of the rascality of the others. The three leading factions are the Hunter, Butler-Lown and the Beaumont citizens. The Beaumont faction want Tom Hamilton elected Mayor. The Barbour Lewis faction favors Dr. Shaw, and the Hunter men sustain Dr. Beecher. The Hunter men really believe in Radical principles—the others play them to win. The Hunter men have the inside track with the colored population, and their strongest card is the proposition to have all places now filled by appointment of the Governor declared vacant by an act of the Legislature, and an election ordered to fill such vacancies.

Mr. B. S. Hendry, Vice President of the Leavenworth, Lawrence and Galveston Railroad Company, informs us that they are now building a road from Lawrence south in the direction of Galveston, Texas, and expect to connect with some railroad in Texas, or to give the Company a continuous railroad line from Lawrence. At present the exact destination is not located, but the general feeling of interested parties seems to be in favor of Preston. The distance from Lawrence to Preston is about three hundred and fifty miles. The cars are to be running this fall thirty miles south of Lawrence, and an additional hundred miles will be completed next year. This will take the road to the south line of Kansas, and leave only two hundred miles to complete the connection. Arrangements are completed for the completion of that portion of the road in 1868. The whole distance from Lawrence to Galveston is about six hundred and fifty miles, which will give Lawrence a seaport town nine hundred miles nearer than New York and Boston. It is expected that a large portion of the imports for the States of Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Colorado, and the extreme Western States and Territories will come over this Galveston road when it is finished, and Western products got out to the world's markets. Altogether, the enterprise is a good one to run this fall from the southern terminus of the Lawrence road to Red river. The efforts of Mr. Sturges, the President, and Mr. Hendrey, the Vice President of the great road, to get into operation possibly, are worthy of the highest commendation.

Unprecedented activity in business of all descriptions, the prevalence of cholera in many localities, the transmission to the northwest from the Gulf States and Arkansas, that trade through Memphis, of millions of money in payment for breadand because the violence of Radical rule and its sudden and thorough suppression of industrial and social energy, all these combined facts swept among from the Pacific and gave period to financial transactions. So sudden and violent were changes that we have mentioned, and such was the alarm given timid capital, that greenbacks and gold hid their humbling faces from the anxious gaze of toiling populations, and absolute want, everywhere in the South, threatened the poor. To sell real estate was an impossibility, and even lottery tickets based upon visible, tangible wealth, found few purchasers.

Within the current month, a wonderful change has been wrought, by three potent causes. It is now ascertained that the South has made corn enough to supply the people through the next two years. In the prairies of Mississippi, corn is selling at forty-five and fifty cents. The price will be lessened, and that of bacon is regulated mainly by the abundance of the corn crop. On the contrary, there are local calamities to the wheat crop, in which the corn crop has utterly failed. A Chickasaw tradesman writes that, within the next two or three months, corn will be shipped from the Arkansas river to supply the wants of the interior of Ohio and Missouri. If rates of transportation on the Illinois and Ohio and other railroads will admit of it, vast quantities of grain will be shipped from the South to Western States. The assurance that the South has an abundance of food, and a cotton crop that will pay off indebtedness to merchants and banks, has wrought a wonderful relaxation of the tight money market. Then, too, recent political events, even if they do not demonstrate with absolute certainty the triumph of the Democratic party in 1868, have served to appease the wrath and diminish the temper of Radicalism. If opposition to Radical rule has been at least of two evils will be imposed upon the country, they must be ruled by "Republicanism" instead of "Radicalism" by outdoors Pomeroys and shameless tenants of Butler and Stevens. These are all signs these people understand by all the financial and commercial and political events. Confidence is therefore reproduced. The reign of extravagant, excessive Radicalism is short-lived, and if the Democratic party triumph, as we may will believe, in view of the recent revolution in Maine and California, in the next Presidential election, universal prosperity will pervade the South. Under such circumstances and with such prospects before us, the Southern Asylum Land Company begins operations de novo. In one lot and as one prize it presents to purchasers of tickets a tangible, visible piece of property that may be covered by buildings fronting on Third street, that will cost for eight thousand dollars per annum. And yet, in the scheme before us, this lot is assumed at only $6,000, on which there is a banking that cost $4,000. Tickets in this scheme, to be drawn next month, without failure or postponement, cost $5. We would hope that those who would serve themselves and the unfortunate will not fail to co-operate in making the next drawing of the company a magnificent success.

The Board of Aldermen.

The City Fathers had a called meeting yesterday afternoon. They unanimously agreed to the compromise with the Street Railroad Company, by which Main street is to be paved forthwith. Yet neither the city nor the Railroad Company forfeit any legal rights.

The Board of Aldermen then ordered the holding of an election on the 26th instant, to determine whether the qualified voters of the city are in favor of giving one hundred thousand dollars of her twenty year six per cent. bonds for stock in the new Gas Company.

Several ordinances for the improvement of streets were passed on the first reading, and then the Board, passing a resolution to rescind a previous action, decided that as there was no apparent necessity for such action so late in the season, there should be no quarantine at present established. The Board then adjourned without doing other business.

Colonel Sedick McKee, formerly a distinguished bank president, and now special agent of the Treasury Department in important cases, is here on official business. He is a fine old gentleman, and his sterling honesty has given him the entire confidence of the head of the Revenue Department. When we see these old chaps about we always anticipate big investigations, astounding disclosures and the like. We wouldn't be at all surprised, if something should come out now to disturb the equanimity of Lincoln Council. Who knows but there may be on the tapis an overhauling of the complicated accounts of Mr. Mongh during and since war times.

Hundreds of acres of excellent land in St. Francis, Green and other counties in Arkansas, were sold yesterday in pieces by public auction at the corner of Main and Madison streets, for the ridiculously [illegible] of ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents an acre. Much of this land is of the very best quality, and can be made to produce abundantly all the products of the South. Is it not pitiable that thousands in Northern cities should be starving while the best corn land in the world is selling at ten, fifteen, twenty and twenty-five cents an acre.

BLACK EYES.—A pretty piece of music entitled "Black Eyes," with appropriate words by the accomplished Cousin Nourma, has just been published by Messrs. Bernhard & McClure, No. 82 Main street, who keep one of the largest and best assortments of music and musical instruments in the city.

CASH BUYERS.—Are invited to examine the largest stock of hats and caps in the South, to be sold out cheap for cash. Merchants visiting the city are requested to examine our stock. MILLER & LEIDY,

MISCELLANEOUS.

The weather was again very warm yesterday, which is taken as a good omen. Business was more active on the landing than on any previous day this week.

Captain John B. Davis brought in a new bale of cotton, shipped by Miller & Clark, of Indian Bay, White river. Captain Davis had offered a premium of a barrel of pork, a barrel of flour, a barrel of cornmeal, and free passage to the shipper of the first new bale. The prize belongs to Messrs. Miller & Clark, who have won it by their industry and energy.

The Gleaner brought in a new bale from the True Luck plantation, Arkansas river. Cotton may be expected to come in freely in a short time, when we hope to see lively times again.

The St. Louis Democrat draws a lively picture of the superiority of that city over Cincinnati, and speaks hopefully of the healthy condition of its commerce, giving the time from Cincinnati to New Orleans, by the Ohio and Mississippi railroad, at seven days, and from Chicago by rail to Quincy and thence to New Orleans seven and a half days. The freights received daily at St. Louis from Cincinnati [illegible] to him, and from Chicago 150 tons. From Cincinnati to Cairo, seven days by river. All this is very fine. The John Kinzer left St. Louis a week ago and has not got here yet. Memphis is the true head of navigation, and if Cincinnati wishes to get her freight through in double quick, let her send it to Louisville, as a instance to all, since by the Memphis and Louisville railroad. To be sure the broad and narrow gauge might conflict somewhat at Seymour; but what of that? It is only a slight disadvantage that the ingenuity of our St. Louis contemporary will easily get over.

The Lumbiery left St. Louis Wednesday evening for New Orleans, drawing six feet water.

The Stonewall, Virginia and T. L. Wolff were advertised to leave St. Louis on Thursday for New Orleans.

The Ida was to have left St. Louis on Thursday for Duvall's Bluff with a Government trip, including 3,500 bales of hay.

Navigation between here and Cairo and the lower Ohio is becoming more difficult. All down stream boats drawing over six feet, are compelled to lighten over Phillips's and Bullesin's bars. The channel between here and Cairo is cutting out very slow, with the channel shifting and making navigation very precarious. The packets report thirty-four inches of water on the bars in the lower Ohio.

The Rowena, Captain J. B. Davis, arrived from White river yesterday with a large passenger trip, a few bales of cotton and a large list of origin. The Rowena is due regular Saturday White river packet, and leaves this evening at five p.m. for all points on White river. The Rowena has unsurpassed passenger accommodations. Messrs. Kidder, Mill Harrey and Mr. Sharpe, gentlemen of large caliber and noted for their urbanity and courtesy, have charge of the office.

The Natoma cleared for Marianna at five p.m. with a light trip.

The Adam Jacobs backed out for St. Louis at five p.m.

The Gleaner, Captain King, leaves to-day at five p.m., positively, for Little Rock and all way points on the Arkansas River. She is a No. 1 light draught boat, and will go through. Mr. John Fenwick, a clever gentleman, is her purser.

The City of Cairo, Captain Bob Reilly, leaves at five p.m. for Cairo and St. Louis.

The Champion will be found at the wharf from Cincinnati with a fair cargo of merchandise. She is receiving at the wharf for a return trip, and leaves to-day at five p.m. for Cincinnati and way points on the Ohio. Captain Grisham is on board of boats or by Tom's Whirligan in the office, assisted by Mason, an accurate freight clerk.

The Arkansas is falling steadily, with twenty-six inches from the mouth to Pine Bluff, and twenty inches above there. The large cats and cat fish are leaving the Arkansas, owing to the low stage of water which is not of sufficient depth for their navigation.

The cat fish of St. Francis river are numerous, and of large size. They have during the past two weeks monopolized the upper part of the river.

The Pilgrim is due from St. Louis, bound for Little Rock.

The Victor, Captain Hosea, is the regular Hale's point and bends packet. She leaves at five p.m. Mr. John Grenham is her popular clerk.

The John Kinzer, at last accounts, was still aground in the channel at Phillips. The Champion and Quitman were along side, taking off her freight. The Champion will be found at the wharf this morning.

The new perb passenger steamer Des Arc, in command of Captain John Elliott, will leave the wharf to-day, at five p.m., for Vicksburg and the bends. She will run regularly in the trade as the Saturday mail packet. Messrs. Miller and Hanks, two gentlemen of high standing, and well known as honest, energetic business men, have charge of the office. She will make all way landings on the bends.

The Ozark, Captain Nowlen, will be found at the wharf this morning, from Little Rock.

The Tempest, en route from Louisville for White river, is aground in the Ohio.

The Cora Bird, Louisville Wednesday evening for Memphis: Among her freight items are 2c barrels pork, and twenty tons government freight, destined for Vicksburg, consisting in part of jellies and preserves, and concentrated milk. She tows a barge.

Captain J. Porterpott's new boat, building at Louisville for the Pearl river trade, will be ready to launch in a few weeks.

The General Quitman, Captain William Richardson, will be found at the head of the wharf with the steamer Victor, for Hale's Point, New Orleans and the bends, and leave to-day at five p.m. Mr. Mooney, a genial and clever gentleman, officiates in the office.

The Rubicon, Captain Alf. Grissom, with Mr. Blake in the office, leaves for Vicksburg and intermediate landings at five p.m. for Vicksburg and the bends.

Navigation between here and Cairo is getting difficult. Everal boats have grounded at Phillips' bar. The Kinzer has been aground three times Tuesday night.

FROM LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN.

The Crops—A Revival—A Model Minister—Marie Antoinette—The Excursion—The Beauties of Lookout, Etc.

LOOKOUT MOUNTAIN HOUSE, September 7, 1867.

EDITOR AVALANCHE—Along the Memphis and Charleston railroad the crops are more gratifying than in any other section of the country I have visited. The drought of the past six weeks injured the crop of corn only to a small extent. Cotton has not had the attention and care it received under the old regime, but there will be a splendid crop notwithstanding all the serious drawbacks of the age. From every section of the country the same reports reach us.

The vicinity of Dickson and Cheek's has been lately undergoing a very decided reformation, under the influence of the teachings of the Rev. Mr. Cherry, the pastor of the Methodist church. This laborious and industrious min ster has been assiduously cultivating his charge during the past year, and as a result, he has added a large number of active members to his church. He seems to pursue his avocation with as much zeal and earnestness as he was wont to exhibit during his long and faithful term of service as a soldier of the Confederacy. I find that he is very popular amongst his people, liberal in his views of religion, not bigoted or guilty of announcing prejudices that produce unkindly feelings in neighborhoods. With all these pleasing features, and to reward him for his labor and earnest and prospecially as it is in accordance with the earnest wish of the people of his charge, I hope he will be returned to his present field of labor, where there is no doubt that he will rapidly build up one of the best circuits in the South. The material comprises a refined, intelligent and charming set of people.

By the courtesy of George Pattison & Son, 67½ Main street, Memphis, it was my good fortune to receive the latest of Louisa Meigbach's books—Louisa and her Tigres, and Marie Antoinette and her Son. The former comprises a series of chapters—either of which can be read as detached pieces, of a history, and always be found interesting. Several scenes are very tearful, written in the melting mood; are very feminine and exceedingly beautiful. As a history of domestic life, and the unhappiness that the cares of state bring in their train, it is exquisitely interpreted and charmingly written, and its effects are peculiarly pleasing. As one of the series, no latter day reader, will neglect it, and will be well repaid for the time expended. Next to Mublibach nee Mrs. Clara Mundt's masterpiece—Joseph the Second and his Court—and which owes much of its beauty and attractiveness to the exquisite translation by Madame Chandron, the last of the series and the best is Marie Antoinette and her Son. Several years ago I read the History of the Diamond Necklace, in the German, and can testify with much pleasure to the accuracy of the translation and retention of the thrilling interest of the original. The scenes and incidents are vividly portrayed by a master hand, and they awaken memories and sympathies of the ill fated and beautiful Queen, that cause more emotion than any other sketches we know of. The pleasures of Marie Antoinette at Trianon are especially truthful sketches. Her sorrows and the horrors she endured at the hands of a murderous and barbarous people, are the most frightful of the Reign of Terror; the outlines of the hideous Marat are so strikingly like that frightful caricature of humanity, Robespierre, as possible. Even the fiend Jean Bon St. Wade, so much reminds us of Santerre; and, as the French Revolution had its Simon, the cobbler, so do we in these sad days have Wilson, the Natick cobbler; and Robespierre, the tailor; Danton, the butcher; and Marat, the journeyman printer, by Thad. Stevens, and the ghoul, cock-eyed Dantes, by spoon Butler, the beast. The book is more than readable, it is fascinating.

The grand excursion that is to meet at this point on the 12th instant, and continue several days, promises to be the most pleasant and successful affair of the season. The inducements offered by the various roads for visitors to make the trip at very cheap rates, will, doubtless, bring out a large number of people, who have never enjoyed the incomparable luxury of a visit to Lookout mountain. Several persons have arrived already, amongst them are Alfred Ogden, Esq., of New Orleans, and lady, from Mobile. A number of people from Macon, Georgia, Columbus, Atlanta and other places in the South have signified their intention of coming. We therefore expect the pleasure of a delightful reunion with many old friends, and anticipate a glorious time. A fine band of music has been provided for the benefit of the guests. The hall room is large and airy. The house is in fine order, and everything in excellent condition to make guests comfortable.

I do not know of a more attractive resort than this on this continent. On all the wide earth there cannot be found any view or scenery to equal the magnificence, grandeur and immensity of this. Stretching away eastward, for more than two hundred miles, the landscape presents interminable ranges of mountains, whose rugged crests rise beyond the sparkling valleys between, until the faintest and dimest line outline is lost in the far distance of the skies. A mist upon world is in this vast expanse, mapped on its surface the waters of the winding Tennessee and its thousand tributaries gleam and shine in the valleys. Often the clouds sail far below our eyrie, and from their dark recess the vivid lightning flashes upwards and downwards, and copious rains deluge the earth. There we stand, with the sunshine encircling us, and down there everything is gloom and darkness and storm. Far away the thunder mutters and bellows and rolls along the echoing cliffs, vibrating the rocks on which we stand. Anon the shadows darken the whole scene, and then succeeds the gilded edges and gorgeous coloring that the great painter, the sun, touches on them with a lavish wealth of indescribable beauty and magnificence.

A view of sunrise over the valley east of Lookout mountain is one of the most wonderful scenes that can possibly appear to human vision. When the eastern horizon is barred with thin clouds, and the valley below is enveloped in fog, the grandeur of the scene is magnificent beyond description. From this high and imposing point, we look over an immense stretch of broken country, the tops of whose ridges are crowned with interminable forests with occasional clear spots, the foot prints of farms shining out from their deep shades. These start out from the thick ocean of fog and look like islets in a huge s a. As the fog is moved by the wind, it is rolled into foam and anon driven like the surface of a storm-torn ocean, the scene looks so tempestuous and overwhelming that the coldest heart is moved to surge with the changing appearance of the ocean of vapor. Numerous little black spots are seen sailing gracefully in long curves and circling over them. From our eyrie above the clouds they seem to be a mile beneath us. The sun comes up behind the glowing and tinted barriers of brightly colored clouds and bathes all the scene in a soft rosy light, that gradually deepens over river and hill and dale and fog, until a deep crimson glow floods the land as if a burning mantle were enveloping all the earth and sky. Gorgeous colorings then change the face of the scene. Gleaming with burnished gold and then shrouded in a gauze-like veil of filmy purple mist, the scene varies and changes again and again, until the world before us is enveloped in a beauty that is more akin to an enthusiast's conception of paradise, than resembling the scenery of earth. The wealth of splendor seen in a sunrise viewed from this mountain, is worth the pains and trouble of a journey over the world. Here are cloud capped mountains, glittering rivers, sparkling hill sides, gleaming rocks, huge cliffs, ponderous caves, glorious valleys, fertile fields and the wealth of an universe, all spread before the eye like a beautiful illuminated panorama, and over it all, the blessed light of the sun floods its genial warmth.

There are numerous attractions in this vicinity, apart from the grand views from the mountain. In the distance and almost at our feet lie the blood-stained battle fields of Lookout mountain—where Hooker did'nt fight in the clouds, the illustrated weeklies to the contrary notwithstanding—Missionary ridge, Chattanooga, and far off in you deeply shaded thick woods, was Chickamauga. The river of death flows brightly now; but, oh! how darkly then! With its broad avenue, spreading like the legs of a spider over the surface of a hill down in the valley is the National Cemetery. The head boards of many thousands of graves gleam from its unshaded surface. What a curious memorial of a war that will never end until the fossils in a free and independent nation. Over there, by that red chasm in the tunnel where Pat Cleburne's brave men bordered the passage of a host twenty times his number. There are many graves there, where the soldiers of the Confederacy died.

"Theirs are deeds that must not pass away,
And names that must not perish, though the earth
Forget her empires in a just decay."

Other places of great interest and copy of scenes are found in this vicinity, and invite the tourist to visit. Amongst the most notable of them is Rock City, a description of which must be deferred for the present. Another curiosity is Lake Secluzion, which is a considerable body of water, and an elevation of twenty-two hundred feet above the river. The fall from this lake is an unbroken sheet of water, nearly two hundred feet in height. Eagle Cliffs, the grandest point to view this section from, is conveniently. An exquisite cavern, evidently much larger, and more extensive than Mammoth cave, is situated beneath this mountain. Late explorations have developed some curious and wonderfully strange peculiarities within its depths and recesses. Of this and other interesting points, more anon, from

The Mount Auburn Young Ladies' Institute,

SITUATED on that beautiful eminence north of the city of Cincinnati from which it derives its name, has just closed its twenty-second session.

The past year has been one of unusual prosperity, there having been in attendance two hundred and thirty-five young ladies, gathered from every section of the Union. No case of sickness requiring a physician has occurred.

Its healthful location and its country position, while yet so near the city, give it advantages over either city or country schools.

In the matter of a first rate Seminary of Learning is too well known to need further comment.

The Library, Cabinet and Apparatus, already very extensive, are receiving yearly additions.
